Course Description: This course will provide students with a study of history and culture for the state of Mississippi. We will cover geography, Native Americans, the economy, politics, the Civil Rights Movement, historical events, along with customs and beliefs that have shaped modern Mississippi.

Grading: This course can be used for high school credit. Parents can check grades or missing assignments at any time on Canvas. All assignments will be given a point value. Tests will be worth more points than weekly assignments. Any assignment one week late will be worth 75%. After one week, missing assignments will be worth 0 points.

Instructional Methods: lecture, reading assignments, activity pages, online discussion boards, videos, small creative projects, slide presentations, group projects, and written assignments

Expectations: This course will be based on a textbook written on an 8th grade level, but supplemented with videos, articles and many small creative projects. Weekly quizzes will be given to incentivize students to read the assigned chapter. Mid way through the semester there will be mid-term exam. Our culmination will be a group project on one aspect of Mississippi and a timeline for the final exam. Class only meets for 50 minutes each week, so it is important for students to arrive on time to class, be prepared and stay up to date on all work assigned. Students will be asked to use an online program called Canvas in this course to complete weekly assignments. Students should expect to do 45 minutes of work outside of class, four days a week. If a student is absent, it will be their responsibility to use Canvas to stay caught up on assignments and get notes from a classmate. Technology will be allowed in the classroom for educational purposes such as notetaking. However, students who become distracted themselves or distract others by texts, calls, apps, or social media will be asked to turn in their devices.

Plagiarism: All assignments submitted in this course must be written in the words of the student unless acknowledged by quotation marks. Students should use the textbook as their primary source for information, not google. Answers should not be copied and pasted from any website. Collaboration with any other students in the class should be appropriate and result in each person recording their own answers in their own words.
